ALASKA MASTER GARDENERS ASSOCIATION NEWSLETTER June 2002

FROM THE PRESIDENT

BY MARY SHIER

Gads, I think I'm having a heat stroke! Did I miss a few months? Is it July or August already? I don't want summer over with yet!!! I thought I was just getting started. I must have blinked too slowly and missed it. This year is giving me flash backs of my early growing up years on the hot East Coast in the summer ( no, I'm not going to give dates) of working like crazy in the mornings and kicking back in the afternoons til about 4PM and then coming alive again to finish up the chores for the day. I came to Alaska to escape from all that, though it was not evident at the time. Just one of the bennies I found after arriving and living here a while. Now I find, I am out in the garden until midnight or later cause the darn sun takes so long to go down and I have this urge to stay working in the garden until I can't see.

They say every year is different and I sure believe that. I don't remember a spring like this one before. Do you? A late snow of quite a few inches, then warming temperatures which is fairly normal, just the temperatures we're talking about being normal at this time..... and warming only. Then we get a hard frost. Boy, did that do a number on several plants which seemed to be doing well, before it took place.

I'm trying desperately to get plants hardened off and planted into the beds or containers. What was supposed to be a fairly simple job has turned out to be a complicated procedure. Normally I can place plants on the ground at the back of my house which is on the north side and move them out a bit every day to acclimatize to the sun etc. This year I'm moving them out and back several times a day it seems. Maaaaaan is this a pain. Why? It just seems like the right way to do it this year.

Shoot by the time this comes out in the newsletter we'll be back to, so called, normal, . You will have forgotten about the unusual temps earlier in the month and wonder what planet I was on. Yeah, well if you'd been keeping notes in your Gardeners Journal you could look back and know I wasn't totally off the planet.

Here's to.....Happy Gardening for summer 2002

AMGA 2002
CONFERENCE REPORT
by Mary Shier

Those of you who did not attend the Master Gardener Conference a few weeks ago missed out big time. We were sure hoping for a larger turnout but, with all the activities going on in town that weekend I guess it was a tough decision. Here's a rundown on what you missed:

Plant vendors included: Sally Karabelnikoff, Rita Jo Shultz from Homer, Sally Koppenberg from the Valley; all with a wide variety of plants. Other vendors were: ABG with their shirts; Janie Taylor with an array of herbal soaps, etc.; Susan Miller had floral pins, vases and lots of items pertaining to gardening; Gardening Coalition getting their word out; Jim Crum with his great garden art wood carvings, his partner & wife had other wood carved items such as dowels plus garden aprons; Rhoda Turinsky with variety of cloth goods with horticulture themes; another was old items combined to make garden art, some being functional; Anne Roberts promoting her book on gardening in Alaska. Last but not least the Master Gardener book booth: books by all the out of town speakers as well as a wide collection of others.

I wish I could have attended all the speakers as we had such interesting ones. Most all had pictures accompanying their talk. I learned from Sharon Lovejoy that small space theme gardening is doable even in a 3 inch wide space and can look good as well. Ornamental grasses have a place in the garden landscape says Steve Schmidt who showed pictures of many types and colors suitable for varied locations. I loved Shane Smith's message on 'Ruthless Gardening.' I came home and eagerly tossed a plant, with no guilt, for which I had lost my fondness but didn't have the heart to get rid of prior to his talk. Richard Reames' presentation on 'Arborsculpture' was fascinating, showing and talking about growing living tables and chairs and how he does it. Judy Wilmarth with Dana Klinkhart operating a power point program gave an excellent run down on peonies. Also that day were Julie Riley doing 'Riley's Believe It or Not' which is funnier than anything. Debbie Hinchey talking about Roses, plant of the year. Marion Owens from Kodiak on 'Photography in the Garden'.

Day two we learned about 'Perennials from Around the World' from Dan Heims and how hybridizing creates new exciting plants over time. 'Greenhouse Gardening in Cold Climates' by Shane Smith took us through the steps of getting a solar botanical garden up to speed in Colorado. Annie Nevaldine, our lily guru gave a splendid talk on Lilies. I could hear now and again enthusiasm from the session as I was attending the bee keepers informative show and tell including everything but the bees. Sharon Lovejoy's 'Gardening with Children' almost lured me but since I had bought her book on that subject I had to hear what Mel Monsen had to say about growing warm season veggies, since I'm also a veggie person. Marion Owens had a light, upbeat, informative program on seed starting. Debbie Hinchey kept a workshop going full bore putting together beautiful 'Lobelia Baskets.'

Whewwwww! That's it in a nutshell. There were also lots of door prizes given out over the two days. We enjoyed an especially lovely touch of several bouquets of Peonies (200 count) which Judy Wilmarth graciously had flown in to display.

I'd like to thank all those persons, which were many, who had a hand in planning and carrying out duties in order to make this a most prized conference to attend.

See I told you, you missed out!

The Orchid Thief:
A True Story of Beauty and Obsession, a National Best-seller by Susan Orlean

"The Orchid Thief," a Columbia Tri-Star Films production starring Meryl Streep and Nicholas Cage, to be released this fall.

"The Orchid Thief...the Tour," built around the real-life people, places, colors, sounds, smells and tastes of the book. Five days in The Redland Historic Agricultural District and Everglades ecosystems. Four nights in historic inns. Under the palm frond-thatched roof of a chickee with a massive stand of bamboo on one side, the night air of the opening night's dinner is perfumed by 50,000 orchids on the other.

AN ILLUSTRATIVE MASTER PLAN... FROM THE CHAIR OF THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR MAY 2002

A year ago at this time, the front page of Gardens North was entitled "Masterful Plan". In the past year, ABG's Master Plan has developed into an "Illustrative Master Plan". Thank you to the many Board members, volunteers and Master Plan Committee chaired by Bob Ballow for the countless hours of hard work and decision-making that has made this possible. The key highlights included in this "Illustrative Master Plan" are as follows:

Garden Entrance - The Entrance will consist of a 24 ft wide entry drive, a 4 ft wide pedestrian path, an entrance sign made of stainless steel frame and trellis, and an entry gate, all beautifully landscaped to make the focal point of the entrance, the Garden itself.

Building Footprints – The 2 primary buildings within walking distance of the entrance and main parking lot are the Visitor's Center and the Reception Building. The Visitor's Center will house the gift shop, library, administrative offices, classrooms and public meeting areas. The Reception Building will house a site for conventions, weddings, and other special events, while serving as an income source for ABG. Both of these buildings will look out over beautiful lawn flanked by formal perennial gardens, while taking advantage of the beautiful view of the Chugach Mountain range to the east.

Gardens - The gardens, defined by theme and shown on the plan via site preference are as follows: Children's Garden; Alaska Agriculture Garden highlighting crops that thrive in AK and serving as an experimental site for new varieties; Perennial Display Gardens; a Wildflower Meadow; a Woodland Walk, a Bog Garden; a Meditation Garden; a Pioneer's Garden highlighting the uses of plants through the native cultures; an expansion of the current Rock and Herb Gardens; and a Winter Garden that will be designed for visual enhancement through the winter months. Amidst the garden and buildings will be wonderful pathways marked with an occasional bench, an amphitheatre, and an arboretum.

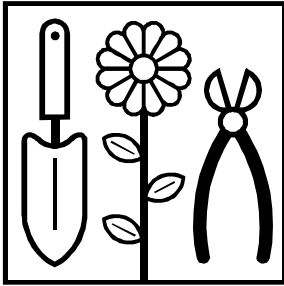

Thank you again to all that have that have worked on ABG's Illustrative Master Plan. With the success of a capital fund drive we plan to launch next month, I hope at this time next year I will be writing about the installation of the moose fence, the expansion of the dog-mushing trail and sharing with you the request for proposal for the design of our Children's Garden.

GARDEN CHAT COLUMN FOR MAY 15TH [HOMER] TRIBUNE

PRINTED WITH PERMISSION FROM RITA JO SHOULTZ

It's that time of year when we are all trying to get forty million things done at the same time. Any little 'time saver' becomes very important. We were sure pleased a few years ago to discover a huge time saver for hardening off plants, getting them ready to be installed in our gardens or getting them ready to go home with our customers.

Find a protected spot where plants will not get full sun, full wind or full anything, sort of a non-spot out of the way. Gather all your plants and nestle them together in this non-spot then cover them with two layers of remae or floating row cover, that filmy white all purpose wonderful stuff. Cozied up in their nice blanket, plants can be left outside for about a week and then uncovered only during the day for another few days depending on the weather. No more moving all your plants in and out every day hardening them off in the old fashioned conventional way. We've enjoyed great success with this method.

I know it sounds extremely simple but do you have a five-gallon bucket handy with everything you need to maintain your gardens? When I get just five minutes or so to work I can't spend that five minutes looking for the right tools. My five gallon bucket has a couple of different size trowels, a narrow pointy one for weeding close areas such as my rock gardens plus a wider trowel for aerating the soil or serious troweling. My most favorite tool for this time of year looks like a miniature leaf rake. It is terrific for gently raking last year's debris from the gardens. This tool has flexible tines and doesn't injure the new spring emerging plants.

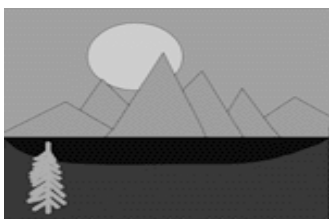

My bucket contains three kneeling pads so I can 'knee walk' by moving the pads around the garden. I have a multi purpose plastic fast food cup that I can't begin to tell you how many uses this guy possesses. Trust me, just put one in the bucket. I have a couple of plastic shut-offs because for some unknown reason, there is always at least one of my hoses that doesn't have this absolute necessity. I have two pairs of pruners and one grass sheer for different degrees of pruning or cutting dead stuff, a roll of twine and a roll of green stretchy plastic tie for staking that are always in the very bottom of the bucket and of course two or three stakes of various lengths. I keep a pair of kitchen shears and a couple of pair of different size regular inexpensive scissors that I throw away at the end of each season. I put a second empty bucket underneath my tool bucket to pull apart and use for the weeds, debris and spring trash. If it's a serious job, I keep two empty buckets. One is for trash and one is headed for the compost pile.

I started off keeping gloves in this bucket but since the bucket is left outside in the weather, often the gloves were wet so now I keep them in my apron. Apron you say?? Of course you do have a gardening apron don't you? One that has three or four pockets to hold a phone, your tiny scissors, a couple of strips of green stretch tie, a few blank white plastic plant labels, a magic marker and a soft pencil to write the name of a new or newly identified plant on your plant label or a handy flat rock. Or maybe you want to make a marker for where you need to plant some bulbs next fall.

Of course in your apron you have a scrap piece of paper to make notes of things to do or buy, notes on how a particular plant is developing in the garden or any of the other brilliant ideas that pop in your head while in the gardens and yes, your gloves. I put my apron on each morning just like I do my shoes or any other necessity. Of course you might not spend as much time in the gardens as I do but at least keep the apron close to the door so you can grab it on your way out. Five minutes in the garden sometimes is all you get and you want to make the best use of that time. Don't spend it looking for a tool.

If you have a shortcut, time-saving hint, a favorite tool, or a special way of making gardening even more enjoyable, let me know and I'll try to pass it on to all our gardening buddies.

Rita Jo Shoultz along with her Husband Leroy is the owner of Fritz Creek Gardens located 8.5 miles East Road in Homer. The Greenhouse is open seven days a week from 10AM to 6PM specializing in over 500 varieties of Alaska Hardy perennials, roses, trees, and shrubs. Rita Jo is available for questions at 235-4969 or by e-mail at ritajo@alaskahardy.com. Her web site www.alaskahardy.com is open and has lots of pictures of the new perennials for this year.

CENTRAL PENINSULA MASTER GARDENER NEWS

By ROSEMARY KIMBALL

Lots has happened on the peninsula starting with a migration of six!! of us to Anchorage for the Master Gardener Conference. That was a good program! Disappointing was that the "green sheen" was nowhere in evidence along Turnagain Arm with spring being so late. Two of us came back on the annual nurseries visit (starting with Recluse and working backwards) on May 16 and it still wasn't there. We contributed to the economy of the area anyway and brought back a car load of plants. Bam! the next day was spring and by the following Monday it looked like it had been spring for weeks.

I'm trying what is known at our house now as the Monsen Method. I just happened to have a roll of IRT-76 mulch standing in the corner of the greenhouse; so the first thing I planted was carrots and sunny day that it was, the soil temperature, according to the instant read thermometer I carry in my bib pocket, was 80°. Uncovered, tilled soil registered 70° and undisturbed soil around a nearby perennial was 60°. Mel, I believe!

Little green things are still inhabiting our Park ramrod's garage with no one even thinking of planting them at Pioneer Park at this time. I'm so glad the sun shines so long now but why don't they make 30 hour days to go along with it?

At the end of May the ground has thawed deep enough for the poles on which the concrete reinforcing wire for the pea trellis is hung can be set. Good thing too, because those peas are ready to transplant. A row of soaked peas of the same variety will go in the ground at the same time and be "Monsenized" this year. This will give us peas over a longer season. My husband suggested several years ago transplanting peas and I pooh-poohed it, but you know, it takes 2 peas per cell in a 4-cell pack exactly 28 days to become perfectly transplantable.

So summer is close. Take two Aleve and call me in the morning...

GARDENING HELP NEEDED

I am going to tackle a large, very overgrown garden, and attempt to bring it back to the living. Problem is, with current back problems, I can't dig very effectively. I need to hire someone to help. I would like to hire someone who has some knowledge about plants.

NOVEL INSURANCE FOR INJURED GREEN THUMBS

FROM A
THE NEW ZEALAND HERALD
25 MAY 2002

Injured gardeners distraught at watching the weeds take over the backyard while they are out of action have been offered a gardening lifeline.

A novel insurance policy, dubbed the Keen Gardeners' Accident Protection Plan, targets those people worried their garden will grow out of control if they are hurt.

While there is the usual lump sum payment for an injury - $150 for an injured "green thumb" - there will also be a special payment for someone to tend the garden until the injured person has recovered.

The plan is being promoted by AIG Insurance and the Nursery and Garden Industry Association of New Zealand, which represents 700 garden retailers and wholesalers.

The association's chief executive, Jeremy Kennerley, said he had no idea whether the novel insurance scheme would take off.

"The proof will be in the pudding," he said.

He said it could be distressing for passionate gardeners to see their garden fall to "rack and ruin".

Gardening payments would range up to $1500.

"In creating, the only hard thing is to begin: a grass blade's no easier to make than an oak."

Bird Chatter

What to do with large vermiculite? I had two large bags from a construction project. I just couldn't bring myself to give it away when there had to be a way to use it in the garden somehow, so I threw a scoop of it in a food processor and yahoo. It chopped it into garden use size. I even used it for seed starting this spring.

Gladiola lovers-when your second leaf appears about 1/2 inch, snip off the top of the first leaf at a 45 degree angle. Do not take more than one half inch. this will strenghten the total plant.

Garden Poem

She dug the plot on Monday - the soil was rich & fine.
She forgot to thaw out dinner - so we went out to dine...

She planted roses Tuesday - she says they are a must.
They really are quite lovely, but she quite forgot to dust...

On Wednesday it was daisies - they opened up with the sun.
All whites & pinks & yellows - but the laundry wasn't done....

The poppies came on Thursday - a bright & cheery red.
I guess she really was engrossed - she never made the bed...

It was violets on Friday - in colors she adores.
It never bothered her at all - all the crumbs upon the floors...

I hired a maid on Saturday - my week is now complete.
My wife can garden all she wants - the house will still be neat!

It's nearly lunchtime Sunday - and I cannot find the maid;
Oh No! I don't believe it! She's out there WITH THE SPADE!!!

The grape Hyacinth is the favorite spring flower of my garden - but no! I thought a minute ago the Scilla was! and what place has the Violet? the Flower de Luce? I cannot decide, but this I know - it is some blue flower.

Gardening in Our Blood

By Jean Little

When autumn time arrived last year,
I said, "I've really had it, dear!
I've raked and hoed and picked and canned;
Just see that callus on my hand!
You know what I've been thinking, dear?
Let's let our garden go next year.
We'll buy all those things in the store -
They wouldn't cost us too much more.
When summer comes I'll sleep till ten,
Get up and clean the house, and then
I'll make a glass of lemonade
and go and sit beneath the shade.
When you come home at night from work,
I'll put the coffee on to perk,
Then we'll sit down and talk or read
And never think of garden seed."
Remember how you smiled and said,
"I think you've really used your head
To save us all this work next year.
I'm sick of gardening, too, my dear."

But then one day, the sky was blue,
The sun was warm, the tulips grew.
The April days grew long and free,
The ground lay waiting patiently.
The sleeping grass awoke to green,
And then in every magazine
Were ads for bulbs and plants and seeds -
In fact, for all your gardening needs.
One day you picked me up downtown.
With bundles I was loaded down.
No need to try and hide the facts
With "Burpee Seeds" stamped on the sacks.
Remember how your face got red
And how you turned away and said,
"When we've unloaded all that junk,
I have a few things in the trunk.
I'll need some help, for it is hot
And seed potatoes weigh a lot."

So now we stand here, hand in hand
And gaze at our productive land.
The berry beds are weeded clean,
The vegetables are tall and green.
We love our land in drought or mud,
For we have gardening in our blood.
